

REHABILITATION NURSING

Now is the time for you to share your knowledge and expertise with your colleagues by publishing in Rehabilitation Nursing, the official journal of the Association of Rehabilitation Nurses.

Rehabilitation Nursing (RNJ) is currently soliciting manuscripts. RNJ is a bimonthly journal that features in-depth articles on current practice issues, research and its implications, editorial features, and news about products and services for individuals with disabilities or chronic illness.

RNJ offers a variety of publication formats ranging from Clinical Features, Research Features, Clinical Consultations, and Current Issues. Author Guidelines can be viewed at <http://rnj.edmgr.com>. All manuscripts are welcome, but topics of particular interest include:

- Spinal cord injuries
- Traumatic brain injury
- Long term care
- Caring for covid patients on a rehabilitation unit
- How is the ARN competency model being used
- Rehabilitation in community settings
- Care transitions

RNJ editorial staff are willing to work with novice writers and walk them through the writing process. All you have to do is ask. The most important thing is that you share your knowledge with other nurses.

Submit your manuscript at <http://rnj.edmgr.com>.

If you have questions or need help refining your ideas, contact Editor-in-Chief Pamala D. Larsen, PhD, RN, at pamaladlarsen@outlook.com or Melissa Bellows MPA, at mbellows@rehabnurse.org.

Your publishing contribution will build the science important to the practice of rehabilitation nursing worldwide.
